

LINE

Line is one of the simplest and most versatile elements of design. Line may be defined as:

- a point in motion
- a series of adjacent points
- a connection between points
- an implied connection between points

LINE Quality

Each line has its own distinctive quality. The quality is largely determined by the line's orientation, direction, degree of continuity, and by the material used.

Actual Lines--contour

Can describe complex forms simply and eloquently.

Contour drawing can distill the complex anatomy to a few simple lines.

Actual Lines--gesture

A Gesture drawing captures essential action rather than describing anatomical detail. We focus on what the object or element is doing as opposed to what it is.

Pencil Exercises

The next few pages are examples of how you might experiment for yourself with pencil and charcoal.

2B Pencil - Would be good to show sand or gravel.

9B Pencil - Good graduating shades. Good for shadows.

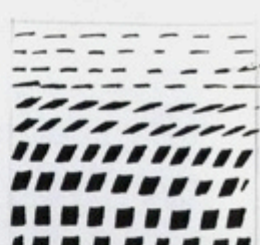

4B Pencil - Not easy to keep the lines straight or from touching.

Drawing Pen No. 3
Good sharp lines

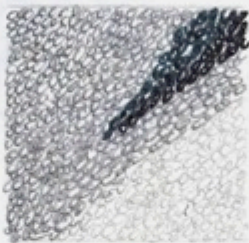

Italic Pen: difficult to keep the lines the same.

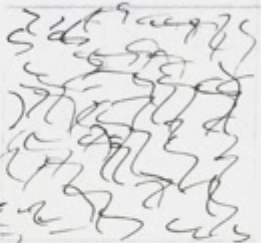

Italic Pen: With practice nice sharp bold marks.

2C Pencil - Lines easily used to darken - Need to keep pencil sharp.

Random Circles - Not easy to vary the shade. Used Pencils 2B 9B + 2H. Grey + Black Felt pen.

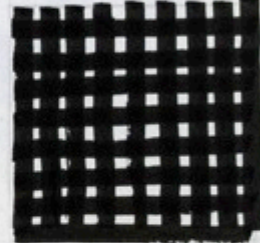

Drawing Pen - Fast + erratic - Fur maybe. Panic!

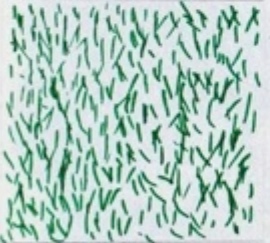

Drawing Pen - The feeling of movement. Water or birch.

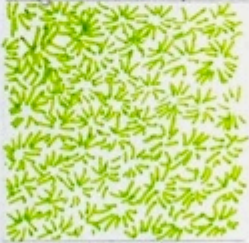

Italic Pen: Bold, stylized. Not good for shading.

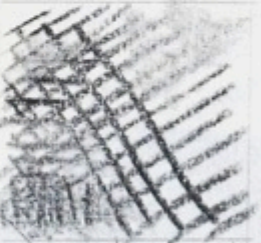

Italic Pen: Bold + dark.

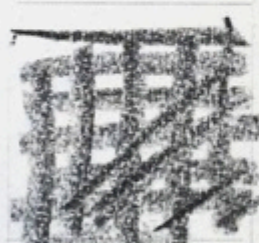

Felt pen - Random marks. Found pattern forming.

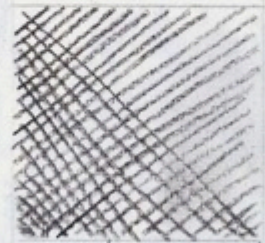

Flat pen - Bushes or trees.

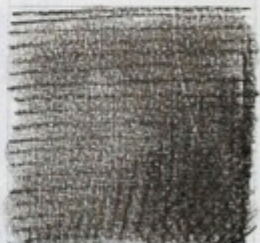

Charcoal - Thin Willow. Broken lines easily smudged.

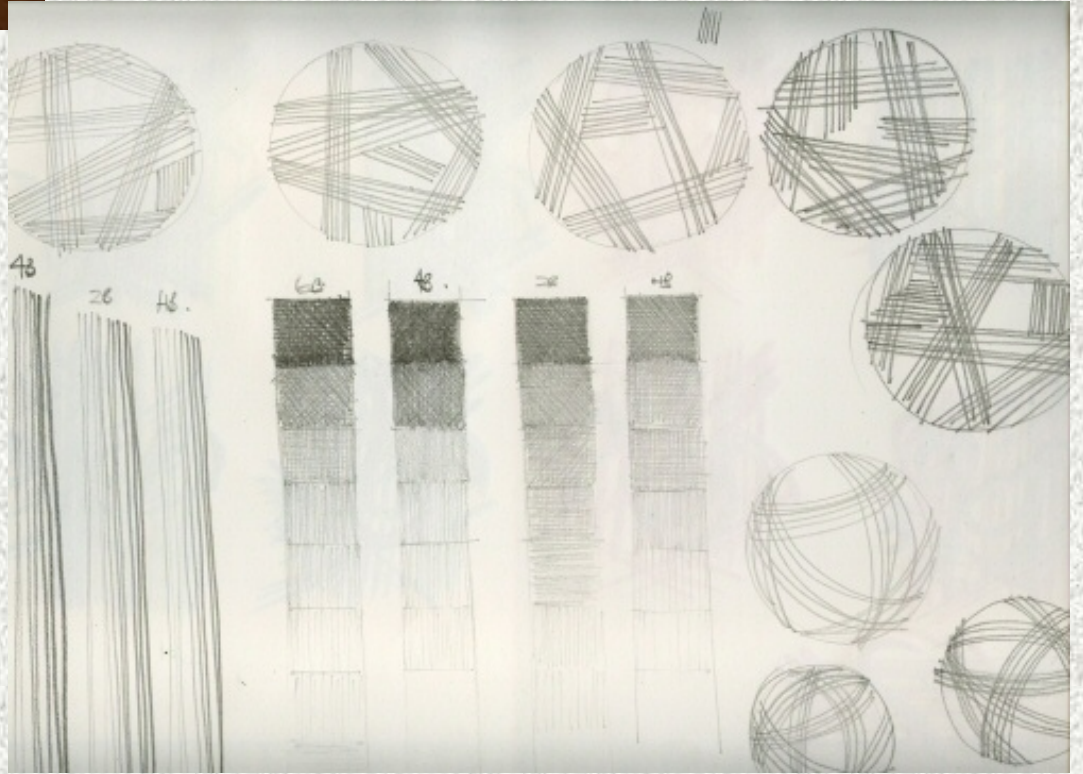

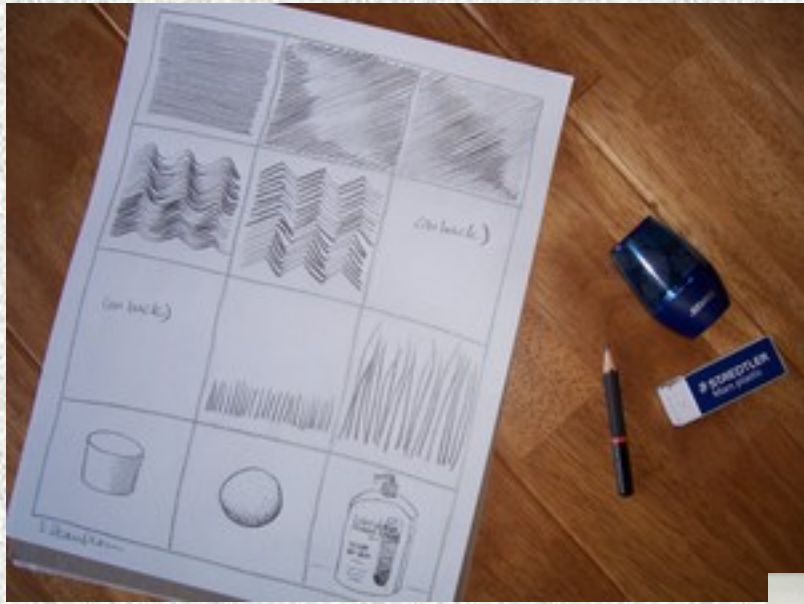

Charcoal - Thick Willow - Broken lines easily smudged. hard to control.

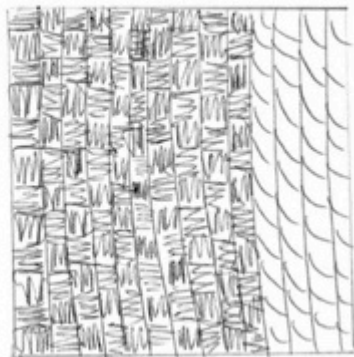

Tinted Charcoal Pencil - More control.

Tinted Charcoal Pencil - Smudged easily.
